CHRYSAROBINE SOAP

Trade Mark
OR
GOA POWDER SOAP,

Specially Prepared with Kemp's Goa Powder for RINGWORM, DHOBIES' ITCH, and every form of PARASITIC SKIN DISEASES.

By the use of this Soap the above complaints are quickly and painlessly cured.

Until the discovery of the extraordinary properties of Chrysarobine, numerous medicines, both Native and European, had long been tried by medical men with indifferent success; and patients underwent years of suffering without obtaining relief. An English Surgeon has informed the proprietors that he suffered from the disease for four years; he visited England for medical advice, and could not obtain any relief. He was at last induced to try Chrysarobine, and in fourteen days his disease had entirely disappeared. Cases are constantly coming under notice, in which a few days' application has cured diseases of many years' duration. Indeed, Chrysarobine now is regarded by natives of India (who are specially liable to the disease) of all classes as an Infallible Remedy for Indian Ringworm.

Per Tablet, as. 8; per Packet of 3 Tablets, Re. 1-4.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE,

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

ADVICE TO INVALIDS.—If you wish to obtain quiet, refreshing sleep, free from headache, relief from pain and anguish, to calm and assuage the weary actings of protracted disease, invigorate the system, and regulate the circulating systems of the body, you will provide yourself with that marvellous remedy discovered by Dr. J. Collis Browne (late Army Medical Staff), to which he gave the name of CHLORODYNE, and which is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

From Symes & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Medical Hall, Simla, January 4, 1882, to J. T. Davenport, Esq., 8 Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London:—"Dear Sir,—We have pleasure in informing you that the widespread reputation this justly esteemed medicine, Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne, has earned for itself not only in Hindostan but all over the East, is a remedy of priceless utility, so much genuine worth whether a better is imported into the country, and ever shall be, a matter of doubt. Being in receipt of numerous Indian home mail advices, we are happy to say we are now enabled to give positive assurance and judging from these data, we have little doubt but that the demand for Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne will be greater than ever. We could multiply instances of testimony to the extraordinary efficacy of Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne in Diarrhœa and Dysentery, Cholera, Cholic, Vomiting of Pregnancy, Sea Sickness, &c., as a special sedative that have come under our personal observation during many years. In Cholera in particular, this even has been the means of saving many lives, when all other remedies had failed to check the disease. We are glad to observe that the Chlorodyne is now procurable from all Chemists, and we have no hesitation in strongly recommending it as being the genuine article, and one which can be relied on to produce the results claimed for it. We are also glad to see that Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is fully endorsed from a professional standpoint by the Lancet, the British Medical Journal, and other leading medical publications, and we feel sure that the fact of its having been awarded a Gold Medal at the International Exhibition, 1873, will be a sufficient guarantee to the public, as we are of opinion that the Jurors would not have awarded this honour except on full proof of the claims put forward by the inventor." STEAM FIRE ENGINES
IN THE LONDON FIRE BRIGADE.

OUR ATTENTION having been called to a circular issued by Messrs. C. H. B. Forbes & Co., Bombay, in which it is stated that the Firm for which they are Agents are the EXCLUSIVE MAKERS OF FIRE ENGINES TO THE METROPOLITAN (LONDON) FIRE BRIGADE, we beg to present below a Statement showing the Fire Engines in use by the Brigade at this date from which it will be seen that OVER TWO-THIRDS OF THE MACHINES HAVE BEEN CONSTRUCTED BY US. For verification of the figures and testimony as to the satisfactory working and durability of our Engines we have no hesitation in referring enquirers to the Chief Officer of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade, London.

[STATEMENT.]

	Number in use by Metropolitan Fire Brigade.	Makers. Shand Mason & Co.	Makers. Other Makers
Land Steam Fire Engines	47	29	18
Floating Steam Fire Engines	9	6	3
Manual Fire Engines	95	67	28
	151	102	49

The suitability of our Steam Fire Engines for use in Eastern climates has been specially demonstrated by the success attending the scores of them in use by the Council of India and public and private Fire Brigades throughout India, Japan, and China, while the constant demand for our various patterns of metallic Manual Fire Engines is sufficient evidence of the satisfaction given by the many hundreds of these Machines already supplied to Municipalities and property owners in India and other hot climates.

We conclude that the circular referred to in the foregoing was issued in ignorance of the true facts and not wilfully to deceive, but as the Statements contained therein are so very misleading we have thought it right to publicly correct the serious error made.

DEATH OF H. R. H. THE DUKE OF CLARENCE.

The news of the death of H. R. H. the Duke of Clarence and Avondale comes as a shock to us in India who have only had Reuter's brief messages, which at first fostered the hope that his Royal Highness' condition was not really very critical. It was only on Monday last that the news of his Royal Highness' illness was made known in India. The telegrams then informed us that his Royal Highness was at Sandringham suffering from a severe attack of influenza and pneumonia. He had spent a good night, and his strength was well maintained. On Wednesday we announced that the doctors deemed it unnecessary to issue formal bulletins, as they took a favourable view of his condition, and his temperature was normal. A later telegram of Tuesday's date informed us that a bulletin issued at midnight stated that the illness from which his Royal Highness was suffering pursued a somewhat severe course, but his condition and strength remained favourable. Again we heard that the pneumonia was pursuing its course and the strength of the royal patient was sustained, but there was no improvement in his condition. Wednesday's telegram stated that there was no fresh change to report in the condition of the Duke, but if anything he was somewhat better. Then came the first really alarming message that, despite the favourable report issued by the doctors, private advices concerning his condition were of a pessimist character. A bulletin issued on Wednesday morning in London confirmed the announcement that grave symptoms had supervened, and that the condition of his Royal Highness was critical. At noon his temperature was 107, and it appeared from subsequent messages that the profoundest anxiety was manifested in England, large crowds having gathered in the neighbourhoods of Sandringham House Marlborough House, and the Mansion House in London, awaiting later information. The news of the fatal termination of his Royal Highness' illness reached India shortly after three o'clock yesterday, and was announced by us in an extra edition shortly before four o'clock.

The melancholy fact is rendered all the more distressing by the circumstances in which the death occurs. His Royal Highness's engagement, the arrangements for his wedding on the 27th of next month, and the bright future which seemed to be opening out for the happy young couple, had brought them into far more than ordinary prominence and their names for the past month have been on every tongue. Many exalted offices, it was conjectured, would be taken by his Royal Highness. One journal to hand this week foretold his appointment to the Viceroyalty of Ireland, while another went so far as to predict his appointment to the Governor-Generalship of India.

The Duke of Clarence was born on January 8, 1864, so that he had just completed his twenty-seventh year. Up to the year 1871 he was educated at home, and in 1877 he entered the Navy as a cadet and on board H. M. S. Britannia at Dartmouth, under care of Captain Henry Fairfax, R.N., C.B., he passed the usual two years' training. In July, 1879, he went to sea in H. M. S. Bacchante, which was afterwards the flag-ship of the East India Squadron, and visited the West Indies. The following year the Bacchante formed part of the flying squadron, then organised under the command of Rear-Admiral the Earl of Clanwilliam, and proceeded to Vigo, Madeira, St Vincent, Bahia, Montevideo and the Falkland Islands ; thence to the Cape of Good Hope and Australia, on which two stations Prince Albert Victor spent a considerable time. From Australia he went to Fiji, Japan, China, Singapore, Colombo, and ... returned to England in ... 1882, by way of Egypt, the Holy Land, and Athens. In October 1883 his Royal Highness became an Undergraduate at Trinity College, Cambridge, continuing his studies during the long vacation at the University of Heidelberg. After this he was transferred to Aldershot to study military science. His diary, together with that of his brother, Prince George, during their cruise in the Bacchante, was published in 1885, the editor being the Rev. J. N. Dalton, the Princes' tutor. In 1887 the Prince visited Ireland, and in 1889, as will be remembered, he visited India. His Royal Royal Highness was everywhere received with the utmost demonstrations of loyalty, and his trip was one continuous succession of enjoyment.

His Royal Highness Prince Albert Victor Christian Edward, Duke of Clarence and Avondale, and Earl of Athlone, was born at Frogmore on the 8th January 1864 ; baptized at Buckingham Palace March 10, 1864 ; matriculated at Trinity College Cambridge, October 1881 ; entered the Royal Navy as a cadet June 1877 ; promoted to midshipman, January 1880; was honorary Lieutenant of the Royal Naval Reserve ; a Bencher of the Middle Temple and of King's Inn, Dublin ; honorary LL.D., Cambridge and Dublin. He became Lieutenant of the 10th Hussars in 1886 ; Captain, 9th Lancers, 1887 ; Captain, 3rd Kings's Royal Rifles, and A. D. C. to the Queen in 1887 ; Major, 10th Hussars, 1889 ; was appointed honorary Colonel 4th Bombay Cavalry, and the 4th Royal Infantry last year ; He held the Grand Cross of the Order of the Netherlands Lion ; the insignia of the Annunciata of Italy, and of the Star of Roumania ; the Grand Cross of the Charles III. of Spain ; the Grand Cordon of the Osmanie of Turkey, and the Portuguese Order of the Southern Cross. He received the freedom of the City of London, of the Fishmongers' Company, June 1885, and of the Goldsmiths' Company in March 1886. H. R. H. was Grand Senior Warden of the Ancient Order of Freemasons.

Many stories were current in England when the news of H. R. H.'s betrothal was made known about the Prince. For instance, there is the amusing story about a certain letter from the Queen to Prince Albert Victor, which realized the sum of £16 at a recent sale. It appears that his Royal Highness when a boy found himself, like other boys, short of pocket-money, whereupon he wrote to his grandmamma to ask for further supplies. These alas ! were not granted ; but the letter of advice which the youthful spendthrift received instead was written in her Majesty's own handwriting, and might therefore on that account be said to "have money in it." Her astute grandson, adds the veracious chronicler, accordingly disposed of it for the sum of 30s. ; and the buyer's investment seems to have turned out a very profitable one. Then, again, there is the story (told by Mr. Herbert Vivian) of how the Prince and Mr. Oscar Browning were once locked by a mischievous Under-graduate in Mr. Browning's bath-room at Cambridge ; and the anecdote that when his Highness was taken round Trinity by Dr. Thompson when he first "went up" Dr. Thompson showed him, among other pictures, a portrait of himself as Master of Trinity by Mr. Herkomer. "Ah !" the Prince is reported to have said. "Oh, yes. Another old master, I suppose ?" But all the stories agree in making out their hero to be a Prince of the genial and kindly disposition that might be expected to show itself in the son of the Prince of Wales. It was after his Royal Highness's return from India that he was created Duke of Clarence. The first Duke of Clarence was Lionel, the third son of Edward III. When the title was conferred on Prince Albert Victor last year, it was specially notified from Court that the double title "Clarence and Avondale" was to be the full formal style of his Royal Highness. From the formal round of institution-opening and banqueting the Duke has occasionally found time to snatch a rest on a canoeing expedition—in the summer of last year, for instance, he chose that luxurious mode of tooling up the river Usk. He took his seat in the House of Lords in June, 1890, and was presented with the freedom of the City in 1885. As an instance of the popularity he won during a stay at York, it may be mentioned that whenever he attended the services at the Minster he always refused to have a special stall retained for him. He used to walk in and take his chance of a seat with all the other worshippers.

THE CRUISE OF THE BACCHANTE.

It was on September 18, 1879, that Princes Albert Victor and George embarked on the corvette Bacchante for the Mediterranean. On May 2, 1880, the Bacchante returned from her voyage, in the course of which she had visited the Mediterranean, the West Indies, and Bermuda. In their voyage round the world in 1881 and 1882 as midshipmen in the Bacchante, commanded by Capt. Lord Charles Scott, as we have said, they visited many countries. The story of their travels, as everyone knows, was afterwards read by all the world. Wherever the Bacchante touched the greatest loyalty and enthusiasm were shown ; and the Princes were entertained at balls, routs, dinners, picnics, in every quarter of the globe. On September 4, 1881, they arrived at the Fiji Islands, where they had an opportunity of witnessing some of the most curious and striking native ceremonies. On the arrival of the squadron at Levuka, thousands of natives came in from all the neighbouring islands and testified their loyalty by giving presents and by performing various festive acts of homage. At Levuka the Princes were the guests of Mr. Des Voux at Government House. At a meeting the Vuni Valu, in the names of the assembled Chiefs and people, heartily welcomed the Princes to Fiji, at the same time presenting a magnificent "tabua," which was received and acknowledged with an appropriate expression of thanks by his Royal Highness Prince Albert Victor. The squadron left Fiji on September 10. One of the finest exhibitions was a grand war dance of the natives, in full martial array, illuminated by the electric light from her Majesty's ship Inconstant. The squadron passed through the inland sea of Japan, between Kobe and Yokohama, a route chosen in preference to the direct way to Shanghai, in order to give their Royal Highnesses an opportunity of seeing the scenery. On December 19 the squadron arrived at Amoy. The squadron, after a stay of a day or two, proceeded to Hong Kong, visiting Ceylon on their way home.

H. R. H'S. BETROTHAL.

The betrothal of his Royal Highness and Princess Victoria of Teck, which was universally approved of in England, was announced on the 7th December last. The Duke of Clarence obtained the Queen's willing assent to the match on the previous Saturday evening, and the formal announcement of the engagement was received without surprise by all the members of the Royal family and the personages of high rank who are admitted to their confidence. It was understood that the Duke of Clarence proposed to Princess May on the Thursday, and two days after his Royal Highness went up to town with the Duke of Teck, acquainted the Prince and Princess of Wales of his proposal and acceptance, and then at once journeyed to Windsor to obtain her Majesty's sanction. This was most heartily and affectionately given, and the Prince returned to town to tell the Prince and Princess of Wales at once communicated their best wishes to the bride-elect, who was at Luton Hoo, and invited Princess May and the Duke and Duchess of Teck to a family luncheon party at Marlborough House. "One who knows the Princess well" says that her brothers adore her. The Duchess of Cambridge was devoted to her ; the Duke himself is very fond of her ; and I believe the Prince of Wales admires her very much. The general impression was that the Duke of Clarence proposed to her at the residence of Mdme. de Falbe. Princess May is an excellent musician, and she sketches a little. She has always been fond of riding and driving, and, in fact, all those exercises that the best English girls adopt. Having lived very much among her own people, she has not had many friends of her own, but every one who goes to White Lodge brings away pleasant recollections of her kindly and intellectual hospitality. She has been of immense assistance to her mother, not only at home, but in connection with several philanthropic works, not the least successful being the Working Guild for Ladies, in the management of which, I hear, that the Princess has displayed the most thorough business-like qualities. When you go to White Lodge she will receive you in the drawing-room, and traits of her [illegible] are hung with portraits of historical associations and explain the peculiarities of the house. She has a wonderful memory for these details. Then there is her dog, to which she is devoted, and a collection of pretty birds. All these things denote her domestic life. Indeed, I think, her recent visit to Balmoral was the first occasion upon which she had been away from home alone. I could mention several instances that have come within my own knowledge of her practical sympathy. One is eloquent and typical of the rest. An old servant had been promised assistance, and wrote to remind the family of it. Without troubling her mother with the letter Princess May sent the old retainer the amount promised her out of her own dress-money and destroyed the application."

THE PRINCESS MAY.

The greatest sympathy will be felt for the Princess May, who by the recent Home papers is spoken most affectionately of as "our future Queen." The Princess always led a healthy out-door life. She delights particularly in long rambles, and with her keen, observant eye is thoroughly familiar with the phenomena of Nature's manifold changes. This life, for some portion of almost every day, in the open air has made her what in all hygienic constituents she indisputably is—the perfect flower of womanhood. At all times her cheek has the same peach-like tint, and her eyes are perennially bright. They are dancing, merry eyes, having slightly upward-arching curves at the outer corners, and half-closing under outbursts of laughter, giving an impression of keen emotional enjoyment. Next to a voice naturally sweet and low it is a pleasure to hear her laugh; so unaffected is it, so full of gaiety, rippling away in the most delightful musical cadence. Her perception of the incongruities in things is particularly acute, and on the side of humour must be almost painfully so. An example may be cited from the Duke and Duchess of Teck's silver wedding in the summer. The Duchess, standing far out alone on the lawn of Cambridge Cottage, was reading, in a voice broken by feeling, her reply to a congratulatory address from the residents of Kew. Her utterances were just closing in a sob over a particularly filial mention of the late Duchess of Cambridge when at this psychological moment something caught the eye or the ear of the Princess May, who was with her two brothers under the verandah. A smile overspread her face, and an untimely cachinnation was smothered only by the aid of a pocket-handkerchief. She is a zealous co-worker with her mother in a considerable number of philanthropic undertakings. Perhaps not the smallest practical token of her good-nature is the fact that she will pleasantly sit through an amateur theatrical performance —which is a degree or two more trying than a trial matinee in the sacred cause of charity. In all the many functions in which such a popular personage as the Duchess of Teck engages, the Princess May is her mother's almost invariable companion. Not even the semi-state which is more or less exacted from near relative of the Queen, prevents her sound common sense from asserting herself, or limits the scope of her remarkable administrative ability, or pettifies in her else deeper womanly sympathies. She is essentially a woman of affairs, prompt, decisive, unwearied of detail, and bringing a calm, unclouded judgment to bear upon every business matter. Such experienced guidance by the mother could hardly fail to develop faculty in the daughter and the Princess May, intellectually endowed above the average of Princesses, has profited by her teaching in an eminent degree. She is shrewd beyond her years, and even, so to speak, beyond her opportunities. Yet, for her rank, she who was of our expected Future King has mixed but little in society. By far the greater part of the year has been spent in the domesticities and mental culture of the White Lodge. Of course, what are called "accomplishments" in the Princess have not been neglected. With her supple, lithe figure, it scarcely needed a pupil of Taglioni to dance to perfection. She is likewise a skilled musician on two or three instruments. But the more solid parts of knowledge have found in her an apt student. She is an expert linguist, and, it is said, has not disdained the severer ordeal of logic and mathematics. At any rate, the result of such intellectual, anvil-work is apparent in her concise, direct speech, in the readiness with which she probes the root of a difficulty, and the scarcely less readiness with which she oftentimes conquers it.

There is something of democratic frankness in her address, and at least an appreciation of something like a Socialistic principle in her practice. At a somewhat promiscuous reception given by her parents one of the female attendants showed a too great eagerness to make a way for the Princess through the crowd. This she abruptly terminated by beckoning up to the domestic and requesting her to desist, for, added she, "I've always shown strong aversion to be treated exceptionally where the convenience or the comfort of others has been affected. To this well-marked principle of conduct is no doubt due a material part of the popularity which the Princess enjoys among all, not omitting the humbler classes of the district in which she resides. She did not take to slumming at the time that slumming sprang into a fashionable pastime, but she assisted a poor women's guild, and is still one of its chief supporters. There is in her a tenacity of character, which is only adequately recognized by those who know of the work in which she has been engaged. Added to this is a great deal of mother-wit, which enables her to make the best of a situation inherently difficult.

THE DUKE OF CLARENCE'S INDIAN TOUR.

Bombay will never forget the arrival of His Royal Highness on the morning of Saturday, the 9th of November 1889, which was made the occasion of the greatest rejoicings ; the city was magnificently decorated and illuminated, and no expense was made to manifest the people's loyalty. When the Prince and party arrived on the bunder, centre of the Pavilion, Mr. Grattan, Geary, the then President of the Municipality, read and presented an address of welcome to Bombay, to which the Prince replied as follows :—

Mr. President and Members of the Municipal Corporation of Bombay,—I am deeply sensible of the kindly welcome conveyed in the address which you have just read. From early boyhood I have been accustomed to hear of the cordial and magnificent reception given by the city of Bombay to my father, the Prince of Wales, in 1875. With this association in my mind and a recollection of those so gracefully referred to in your address, I cannot but feel that in this beautiful city I am to-day landing not amongst strangers but surrounded by friends. As a friend, then, let me express my sincere congratulations on the extraordinary record of prosperity which is represented by the facts and figures mentioned by you. For this prosperity you are, as you loyally recognise, largely indebted to the peace so happily secured under the rule of her Majesty the Queen-Empress ; but these results could not have been attained without the exercise on the part of the community of Bombay of those qualities which have raised their city to rank amongst the foremost of the empire. It will afford me very great pleasure to communicate to her Majesty the Queen-Empress the loyalty to her throne and family displayed both in your warm greeting to myself and in terms of the address you have presented to me. Your charming city being the gate of India you have frequent opportunities of showing that you possess all the characteristics of a perfect host by your manner of welcoming the coming and speeding the parting guest. The desire so kindly and pleasantly expressed that I should remain with you for some days before bidding farewell to India is entirely in accord with my own wishes and I have every reason to hope, that during my visit as a parting guest I may have time to become more fully acquainted with Bombay and its enterprising citizens who have given me so hearty a welcome to-day. In conclusion, I trust that I may be allowed to thank you for the kindly reference you have made to my arrival, being coincident with the anniversary of my father's birthday.

His Royal Highness, on the conclusion of his speech, and accompanied by the gentlemen who had met him on his landing, then proceeded to the entrance of the mandap, where a carriage was waiting for him, and, was driven to Government House which a reception was given in his honour.

The Prince did not remain long in Bombay on the day of his arrival, it being arranged that he should spend a few days in the capital of Western India before departing for Europe the following March. He accordingly left for Poona the same afternoon, where he went to visit his uncle, H. R. H. the Duke, and H. R. H. the Duchess of Connaught. The three days he spent in Poona were gay ones for all in the city. He arrived at Kirkee the same evening, and next morning, accompanied by the Duke of Connaught, Lord Reay, and General Sir Edward Bradford, the Prince visited the parade-ground, and witnessed some of the members of H. E. the Governor's Body-Guard tent-pegging. In the afternoon the Prince was very busy receiving guests. Amongst those who visited him were the Maharajah of Bhownugger, the Raja of Kolhapur, the Raja of Akalkot, the Punt Sachiv of Bhor, and other Chiefs, and a number of First-class Sirdars. The principal reception, however, was that of the Raja of Kolhapur. A procession of four carriages left Ganeshkhind for Parvati, H. R. H. Prince Albert Victor, Lord Reay, General Bradford, Colonel Lyttelton, H. R. H. the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Lady Reay, Admiral Fremantle, of H. M. S. Boadicea, Captain Forbes, Lieutenant Walter Sir Arthur and Lady Hayter, Mrs. Lyttelton, Captains Halford and Packenham and Pinhey being of the party. The foot of Parvati Hill being reached all dismounted from their carriages and began the ascent. Here a rather amusing, yet pleasing, incident took place. Some poor natives loaded with flowers rushed after the Prince and eagerly pressed their modest gifts upon his Royal Highness. And now the kindly nature of the Prince showed itself. He accepted the flowers offered him. The Duke of Connaught followed his nephew's example, and H. E. Lord Reay, to the evident delight of the poor creatures, stopped and made a contribution of the bouquet presented him. At the spot where the carparisoned elephants were found waiting. Here also the Chief of Bhor was found ready to conduct the party up the hill. A ladder being placed against the side of the larger elephant, H.R. H. the Duchess of Connaught mounted into the howdah, and H. R. H. Prince Albert Victor speedily took his seat by her side. Had they guessed, however, the risk they were about to run, it is a question if they would have taken their lofty seats so readily. All went well until the journey was nearly accomplished. But the steep part of the ascent near the top proved rather a trial to the elephant. It stumbled and the animal slid backwards over two of the steps, but with a struggle managed to right itself. All danger was not yet past. With some difficulty, the brute was led off the stone path on the grass by the road side and brought to its knees. Then their Royal Highnesses safely dismounted, the Princess was somewhat agitated, but a chair being called for she was carried more comfortably to the summit than on the elephant's back. When the cavalcade reached Magdala House, the residence of H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, another exciting little scene was enacted, which fortunately however, did not prove serious, although it was the second narrow escape the Prince made during his few hours' outing. When the carriage stopped, the prince was the first to alight, and just as Lord Reay was following, the horses took fright, presumably at the wild demonstrations of the crowd and bolted. Some of the cavalry in attendance went immediately to the rescue ; but they did not succeed in stopping the horses till they had torn the shafts from the carriage. No one fortunately was hurt. All Poona was early astir this morning, for on the parade-ground Prince Albert Victor held a grand review.

In the afternoon there was a large trun-out of Poona society at the Kirkee Gymkhana, where some sports were organised in honour of his Royal Highness. At night a grand State ball, at which over four hundred guests attended, took place at Government House, Ganeshkhind.

On November 15 His Royal Highness left Poona for Hyderabad, which was reached at a quarter to twelve on the 16th, when a grand reception awaited his Royal Highness. H. H. the Nizam was there surrounded with his chief officials waiting to welcome his guest in person. H. H. the Nizam after the ceremonies of introduction, conducted the Prince to the State carriage, which was in waiting, and escorted by a Contingent of the 7th Hussars and Madras Cavalry the Prince's party drove direct to Bashir Bagh, where the Prince resided during his stay in Hyderabad. In the evening, a grand ball was given at the Residency in honour of the Prince's visit. H. R. H. next morning, set out for Aurangabad, where Nawab Mir Afsar Jung had promised him good sport, hunting down deer with the cheetah, and shooting black buck. About seven in the morning, the Nizam and the Nawab Major arrived at Bashir Bagh, and all being ready, the Prince, escorted by his hosts, together with his staff. Game was found immediately on arrival, and one of the three cheetahs which had been brought up in a cart was got ready for the sport. He was run forward, unhooded, and his nose set at a fine herd of deer.

The Prince, however, was anxious to kill deer himself in a more manly way. He longed to bring his rifle to bear upon the game he had come out to find. Prince Albert Victor was successful, more so even than his Royal father the Prince of Wales was when in a first deer-stalking on an Indian plain. His Royal Highness very soon proved himself a steady and good marksman killing a fine animal with a cleverly planted bullet.

At noon, by invitation of His Excellency Sir Asman Jah, two hundred and four guests sat down to breakfast with H. R. H. Prince Albert Victor in the palace at Khas Bagh, in the city. The route from the Prince's residence to the palace was magnificently decorated. The sky was almost hidden with line upon line of banners and flags of all nations hung over the streets. Venetian masts tipped with gilded spikes, bore little banners of many colours, and between the footpaths and the road were erected frameworks of wire-netting which were profusely garnished with flowers. It was in fact like a barricading of roses. The triumphal arches, were as numerous as they were massive and grand. Breakfast over, his Royal Highness departed for Bashir Bagh, and having been so delighted with the excellent sport he got at the morning's hunt for the killing of three bucks in the course of two hours was indeed something to be proud of—he expressed a desire, instead of going to the races, to try his luck again with the gun.

Then came the great event of the day, the grand banquet by H. H. the Nizam and Mir Asman Jah at Afzal Mahal Palace.

IN MADRAS.

Leaving Hyderabad the Prince proceeded to Madras and arrived on the afternoon of the 18th November. On alighting from the saloon his Royal Highness was received by Lord Connemara, and Sir Charles Arbuthnot. The Municipal Commissioners cordially welcomed the Prince and sincerely hoped that his Royal Highness would find his Indian tour not only a source of pleasure and enjoyment, but also means of emitting his sympathies on behalf of the people of this vast Empire. In the afternoon Lord Connemara drove him through Fort St. George and principal streets of Black Town, which was most elaborately decorated for the occasion. Large crowds of people thronged the roadsides along the entire route ; verandahs and housetops were densely crowded on both sides of the streets. Numerous triumphal arches and pandals bearing words of welcome and expressions of loyal feeling of the people, were erected along the route. It was estimated that half a million of people turned out to see the Prince pass. Several garlands were presented and flowers showered upon him as he passed, some poor school children also turned out and sang the National Anthem which the Prince graciously stopped to hear. The State reception in honour of the Prince was held in the banqueting hall which was very numerously attended, about a thousand persons teen present. The Prince retired at eleven o'clock, and started by a special train at 7-55 next morning for Chingleput on a snipe-shooting expedition. Only two guns were used, one by the Prince and the other by Captain Holford ; between them they bagged forty-six and a half couples, the Prince taking the larger number himself. An official State dinner was given at Government House at 8-30 p.m., fifty-nine guests were present, mostly officials, Civil and Military. During his stay H. E. the Governor gave a Ball in honour of H. R. H. Prince Albert Victor, at the Banqueting Hall.

On the 28th H. R. H. Prince Albert Victor of Wales and suite arrived at Bangalore and reaching Mysore the following day the Maharajah drove the Prince four-in-hand towards the Keddah Camp. Starting from Mysore at six o'clock the party passed through villages—Kadakola, Namjamgode, Badnagopha, Dendrawdee, Chamrajnugge, and Attikul—all of which were gaily decorated with arches and thoranums. Crowds of people turned out and cheered the Prince. They arrived at Chamrajnugger, thirty-six miles, shortly after ten o'clock, where the large party breakfasted at Government House ; here after having changed their horses they drove within three miles of the Camp, where riding-horses were kept in waiting. The whole party then rode into the Camp where elaborate preparations were made by Mr. Mc-Hutchin the executive engineer. A travelling escort of the Silladar Horse accompanied the party. The Prince, after breakfasting in his own tent, started on an elephant howdah for the Kheddahs, which are situated six miles off in the midst of a lovely valley with steep mountains on either side. Previous arrangements had been made to secure a successful catch on the 9th instant, and ahead of thirty-five had been confined within a large area of a hundred and fifty acres, watchmen being posted to prevent them from escaping. On the Prince's arrival at Kheddah the drive commenced. Mr. Sanderson was in charge of the operations. The Prince, with Mr. Sanderson, watched the operations from a platform on a tree. After the elephants were driven into a large enclosure little difficulty was experienced in driving them into the inner enclosure. After a few unsuccessful attempts they eventually succeeded in driving them into the inner enclosure. The Maharajah and the party witnessed the drive from a grand stand erected in a convenient spot. The second smaller enclosure was then opened to allow the elephants having water for the night and sufficient fodder. The next morning the Prince saw elephants being caught, tied, and led out of the Kheddah. On Wednesday he went bison shooting in the neighbouring hills. The elephant drive was very interesting and exciting. On the Tuesday morning the Prince was to have gone back to the kheddah to witness the tying-up of the wild elephants, but heavy rain fell during the night. It being very wet in the morning, Dr. Jones would not hear of the Prince's going out in the damp. About 10 o'clock the rain held off and the sky began clearing, the Prince with a small party took their guns and did a little shooting in the surrounding jungle, securing fine specimens of pretty plumaged birds, which the Prince proposed having stuffed. The subsequent elephant capturing operations were of a very interesting and exciting nature. A herd of thirty-five elephants were divided into two batches. Eight tame Decca elephants with mahouts in attendance entered the one enclosure, and secured the large troublesome females first. The Prince and Mr. Sanderson entered the enclosure, when a big female elephant charged within ten yards of where the Prince stood. The Prince took flight and escaped to the platform at the gate. Mr. Sanderson stood firm, held up his arms, and shouted loudly, thus frightening it. The female elephant was then surrounded by tame elephants. Some attendants dismounted, and secured the hind feet with thick ropes and made her fast to a tree.

Returning to Bangalore a grand ball was held on the night of November 30th. Leaving Trichinopoly on the morning of December 2 the party halted. A large deputation of leading citizens presented a memorial, praying his Royal Highness to consider his decision regarding his visit to that celebrated town. The procession passed along the decorated route, which was illuminated by torchbearers, with torches at short intervals. The sides of the roads were crowded by thousands of people, who accorded the Prince a hearty welcome.

At Courtallum, Kalathuspolay, and other places in South India, His Royal Highness did a great deal of shooting, and witnessed elephant capturing. Arriving at Madras again on December 12, he spent a quiet day and in the evening he drove through Adyar and Mylapore down Mount Road to the Public Hall, where a grand native entertainment was given in his honor. The Prince subsequently drove back to Guindy via Mount Road, calling at the Madras Club on his way home, where he supped.

On December 16 His Royal Highness left Madras for Rangoon, He embarked on board the B. I. S. N. Co's steamer Kistna. Before leaving Government House, Guindy, the Prince, at the request of His Excellency the Governor, planted a Belgaum Walnut tree in Guindy Park on the west side of the house in the presence of a small gathering of ladies and gentlemen.

IN CALCUTTA.

On the 3rd of January the Prince reached Calcutta. The Prince was received by H. E. the Viceroy and the Lieutenant Governor, and from this point the official programme was punctiliously observed. A few minutes before the reading of the Corporation address, his Royal Highness spent a minute or two in admiring the casket, a magnificent specimen of silversmith's art. Sir Henry Harrison then read an address, to which the Prince replied as follows :—

"Mr. Chairman and Members of the Corporation of Calcutta,—It is with the greatest pleasure and satisfaction that I to-day find myself in Calcutta, the metropolis of her Majesty's Indian Empire, and I need hardly say how much this gratification is enhanced by your presentation of an address which has just been read, couched, as it is, in terms of eloquent loyalty, and bidding me as the grandson of her Majesty the Queen-Empress a welcome to your city. Ever since my arrival in India, now over two months ago, I have been immensely struck by the intense feeling of affection and devotion to the throne and person of her Majesty the Queen-Empress that animates all races and classes in this country, and the splendid manner in which, from a desire to give expression to this feeling, I have been received and welcomed throughout my tour, and at each place I have visited, has astonished and greatly impressed me. My journey has so far been one of continual pleasure, wonder and instruction, and nowhere has this been the case more than in Upper Burma, to which I have just paid an all too short visit, for it is to me a perfect marvel that such complete order and evident contentment should have been secured and established in the short period that elapsed since it was brought within the confines of the British Empire. I am now looking forward with equal interest to my tour through Bengal and the northern provinces, in which I feel sure that large as the expectations, my experiences of the past have undoubtedly led me to form, they will be more than realized. With all sincerity I endorse the hope so gracefully expressed in your address that my visit, whilst adding to attachment already existing to the Crown, may not be without its good effects upon myself. I can assure you that I shall carry with me from these scenes a lively interest and regard for all the Indian subjects her Majesty the Queen-Empress, and, as I know to be the case with my father, their sentiments will ever find a foremost place in my heart. In conclusion let me, gentlemen, thank you very sincerely for your cordial welcome, which will be as highly appreciated by her Majesty and my parents, as it is myself. [illegible] in the manner dropped anchor I have received copies of less than two messages of welcome from the communities, municipalities, and associations of Bengal, Behar, Orissa, and Assam, of the value of which I am deeply sensible."

The entertainment in honor of H. R. H. Prince Albert Victor was an unqualified success. On the 9th January the Maharajas of Durbhanga, Doomraon, Bettiah, and Gidhour paid private visits and a dinner was given at the Bengal Club. Among the guests were the Lieutenant-Governor, the Lord Bishop, the Chief Justice, Sir Claude Hamilton, Lord William Beresford, and the Maharajas of Cooch Behar. A State ball given at the Government House was a brilliant success. Close upon two thousand persons were present.

At Calcutta a deputation waited on the Prince asking his permission to found a lapel regiment as a memorial to his Royal Highness, who graciously acceded to the request. He thanked the gentlemen for waiting in deputation on him, and he was gratified to find that they were trying to make a permanent memorial to honour of his visit. He could not overlook the fact that his father always had [illegible] the very deepest interest for the benefit of lapers throughout the country, and more closely of late. He was glad to allow his name to be publicly associated with the movement in favour of a permanent memorial which had been inaugurated by them. He had, he said, the deepest sympathy with the movement. Mr. Stevenson thanked the Prince for his gracious reply according to the deputation's request, and Raja Sir Sourendro Mohun Tagore thanked the Prince for the kind reception given to the committee.

The Prince left Calcutta on January 10 on a shooting expedition, and toured through the Punjab and the North-West Provinces, shooting his first tiger at Jeypore, on the 14th of February 1890. At the beginning of March the Prince entered Bombay Presidency again. On March 14 he reached Baroda. In the course of the afternoon his Royal Highness inspected the State jewels which were placed on view at Sampatrao's Library. In the evening at eight o'clock his Highness the Maharaja accompanied H. R. H. Prince Albert Victor to the spacious shamiana brilliantly illuminated in the public park, where a banquet was prepared.

A special train was provided to take the Royal party from Baroda to Wadhwan, and the Gaekwar's State saloon carriages were placed at the disposal of the Prince. At Wadhwan, which was reached a little after noon his Highness the Raj Saheb of Dragdra was his Royal Highness's host for luncheon, which was provided in the refreshment room. The Raja Saheb was accompanied by his brother and three sons, his Dawan, Rao Bahadur Pofat Velji, and other officials, and the Thakores of Limbdi and Wadhwan also were present to pay their respects to his Royal Highness. Here amongst other fetes, his Royal Highness was entertained to a State banquet.

H. R. H.'s DEPARTURE.

On Saturday, the 22nd of March, his Royal Highness arrived in Bombay by sea again, in the H. M. S. Lawrence, and met with another enthusiastic reception. On the Monday evening his Royal Highness with H. E. Lady Reay, General Bradford, Captain Holford, and Captain Phayre, A. D. C., and other officers, attended service at the Cathedral. His Royal Highness was early out on Monday morning. After chota hazri he was taken to the Ladies' Gymkhana, Malabar Hill, where he enjoyed a game at lawn-tennis. During the early part of the day he was engaged receiving visitors. About a quarter-past four in the afternoon his Royal Highness drove to the Maidan, where he witnessed a portion of the sports, and returned to Government House, through the People's Fair which was then being held.

It was unfortunate that on the Wednesday which was the chief fete day held in honour of the visit of H. R. H. Prince Albert Victor of Wales to Bombay, and which was observed as a public holiday in the city, his Royal Highness should, owing to a slight attack of fever, have been unable to witness the festivities. In the forenoon he received visits from about fifty gentlemen, representing different denominations of Christians ; but during the whole day he never left Government House, Malabar Hill. H. E. the Governor however, accompanied by Lady Reay, formally opened in his Royal Highness's name the fete at the Victoria Gardens, and the Industrial Art Exhibition, and at night drove over the route the Prince ought to have taken to view the illuminations and fireworks. The following day His Royal Highness spent a very quiet forenoon. In the evening he accompanied Lord and Lady Reay to the Victoria Jubilee Technical Institute and from thence went to the Victoria Gardens. Next night he was entertained at d imperfections of the books which I wrote while as yet I knew the revelation of the day of Pentecost only in a broken and fragmentary way. As I saw the truth, so I spoke it, to the truth as it is in Jesus." The works which I then published, even without the private records which I have by me, are enough to mark the progressive, but slow and never receding advance of my convictions, from the first conception of a visible church, its succession and witness for Christ, to the full conception and manifestation of its divine organic on of head and members, and of its supernatural prerogatives of indefectible life, indissoluble unity, infallible discernment and communication of the Faith. Those books have a unity, due to progress, and a directness of movement, that give assurance positively and intensely such truths of the perfect evolution of God as successively rose upon me. I was on many lustrous secrets of holiness, but a divine Guide, as yet unknown to me, always led me on. I can well remember at the outset of my life, as a pastor, as I then already believed, the necessity of a divine commission forced itself upon me. Next, how the necessity of a divine certainty for the message I had to deliver became, if possible, more patent. A divine, that is, an infallible message by a human messenger is still the truth of God, but a human, or fallible message by a messenger having a divine commission would be a source of error, illusion, and all evil. I then perceived the principle of Christian tradition as an evidence of the truth, and of the visible unity of the Church as the guarantee of that tradition. But it was many years before I perceived that such a Christian tradition was no more than human, and therefore fallible. I had reached the last point to which human history could guide me towards the Church of God. There remained one point more, to know that the Church was not only a human witness in the order of history, but a divine witness in the order of supernatural facts.

The only good thing which the Papacy did for England of late years, writes Mr. Stead in a sketch on the Cardinal was to make Cardinal Manning Archbishop of Westminster. Pius the Ninth knew and loved the English convert, and when Cardinal Wiseman died he insisted upon nominating Dr. Manning as the successor. In the opinion of the English Catholic, the primacy ought to have gone to an elderly, inoffensive prelate, whose claims on the ground of seniority and long service were undoubtedly as much as superior to those of Dr. Manning as Dr. Manning was his superior in capacity. The Pope stood firm. English Catholic opinion was set at defiance and the convert of 1851 became the Catholic Archbishop of 1865. Therein unquestionably the Pope showed true insight, and justified to that extent his claims to his pre-eminent position. For although it seems paradoxical, it is a simple literal truth that the Cardinal's chief difficulty after his connection with the Scarlet Woman on the Seven Hills has been the existence of the English Catholics of the aboriginal variety, for the English Catholics who represent the old stock without any Protestant interlude are anything but an ideal flock for a shepherd who wishes to enlarge the border of his fold. They are the Anglican species of the French Legitimists—a highly-respectable intensely-Conservative-utterly-sterile set of citizens. From any point of view beyond that of the blameless discharge of their religious duties and the preservation of their families intact from the incursions of modern thought, they are about as useless to the Church as they well can be. They are the fossils of the Church; and to such men the advent of Cardinal Manning must have been a severe trial. Imagine the consternation in the Faubourg St. Germain if the Comte de Chambord had come to the throne in 1873, and had made M. Gambetta his Prime Minister, and you can form such conception of the dismay in the English Catholic ranks when the quondam Archdeacon of Chichester became Archbishop of Canterbury. It is a visitation of offended Heaven, said one, that this man should be raised up to scourge us. They are aristocratic, he is a democrat. They are exclusive; he is as expansive as catholicity itself. They pride themselves upon their unbroken fidelity to the church through many generations; he was a vert of only fourteen years standing. It needed a Pope to thrust such a man upon such a flock, and Cardinal Manning has abundantly justified the audacity of his patron's choice.

THE CHRISTIAN SOCIALIST.

Under this heading recently the Review of Reviews wrote:—

The Social question is to Cardinal Manning the question of questions. The condition of the people the improvement of their homes, the removal of their complaints—all questions relating to the amelioration of their lot—are constantly with him. He is in hot revolt against the stony-hearted Bureaucratic machinery of our Poor Law, and he is so far a Socialist as, to lay down in its strongest terms that a starving man has a natural right to his neighbour's bread. So strict is this natural right that it prevails over all positive laws of property. They must know little of life, he is constantly reminding us who do not fraits of Xoxoi, of man and woman comes from the the third volume of his Miscellanies (which is entitled, "A Pleading for the Workless," which is imbued with the spirit of Him who came to seek and to save those who are lost. Nor is it only an article that the Cardinal preaches. His whole life is devoted to the same task. In the dockers' strike—of which I say nothing for the incidents are so fresh in public memory—he only did on a wider platform, and in sight and hearing of an audience, what he spends his life in doing on a smaller scale.

THE INDO-BRITISH INSTITUTION CONCERT.

The concert which was given in the Town Hall on Wednesday night, in aid of the funds of the Indo-British Institution, was not so well patronised as the programme, which was well advertised beforehand, might have expected to draw out. Little more than half of the seats in the hall were occupied, which is seldom seen when H. E. the Governor and Lady Harris take the lead, giving their patronage, and signifying their intention of being present. Lord and Lady Harris did come, with their staff, and a large party of guests from Government House, and H. H. the Gaekwar of Baroda, and suite, were also present. The concert opened with the glee, "Come, let us join the roundelay," sung very appreciably by a well-balanced little party. Their music sounded very soft and pleasing to the ear, but they seemed as if a little afraid of making too much noise, and a little more forte at those passages which required it would have been more effective. The same party concluded the concert with a merry rendering of Macfarren's part song, "You stole my love." What the musical evening was most remarkable for, however, was the first appearance of Mrs. A. C. Walker on the concert platform since her return from England. She received a very hearty welcome when she came on the platform, and gave two contributions. She first sang "Oft in the stilly night." She did not seem in very good voice, which lacked somewhat of its usual [illegible] at times. It might have been better for her voice had [illegible] Wednesday night, but if there is anything for which Mrs. Walker deserves admiration, it is that no matter how she may be suffering from any throat affection, she never disappoints her audience by not appearing after allowing her name to appear in the programme. There was no denying, however, the Xpres fiveness of her singing. Strange to say, Thou'rt did not appear on her usual good form either. Perhaps the abnormal changeableness of the temperature, which is the source of so many coughs and colds just now, had something to do with it. If she did not sing "Bid me discourse," as well as we have heard her, she certainly rendered her contributions with much sweetness, and was deservedly recalled. Mrs. Greenway, however, did not seem to be suffering from the weather. She sang "A night in June" as clearly and as effectively as any song we have heard her attempt. It was a pity, as her name was only twice on the programme, that she did not respond to the encore, which she might have had time to do, had the concert not commenced so very long after the advertised time. Mr. Basil Scott sang "The mid night parade" in a very tasteful way. Mr. Anderson Clarke was in first-rate form, and sang, as usual, with taste and artistic finish. Mr. Freyvogel gave two violin solos, accompanied by that master pianist, Mr. Maxas. Mr. Freyvogel's solos and the beautifully-executed accompaniments were charming to listen to. Mr. Mant only appeared twice, giving the Marche Religieuse (Gounod) and an Intermezzo (Chies) on the organ with his customary skill. "God save the Queen" closed the concert.

Before attacking Umra Khan of Jandol, it is said that the Amir's Commander-in-Chief, Gholam Haider, purposes to reduce Dir, Swat and Bajour to subjection This report is causing excitement in Kafiristan, as the subjection of Dir, Swat and Bajour would be regarded as the first step to the conquest of the country by the Amir.

Dr. Parkhurst, in a paper in the New Review, records some experiments he has been making with various individuals in order to discover what words and ideas are the most common. He set twenty-five men and twenty-five women to write down as quickly as possible the first hundred words which came into their minds. Out of these 5,000 words he finds only 2,324 different, some of the words enormously being used many times in the fifty lists of words. He finds also that women are more inclined than men to use the same words as one another, and that their ideas, as we might perhaps naturally suppose, run greatly on articles of dress.

Holloway's Pills and Ointment.—It is impossible entirely to prevent the noxious vapours which are given off to mix and tainder and those who, like cutlers and railway operatives have to work day after day in such vitiated atmospheres, suffer in health and strength in consequence. The chest and liver often become clogged with the products of coal combustion, necessitating great attention to the health. No remedy is more valuable for miners and the like than the Holloway's Pills as they carry off all effete matter from the blood and healthily stimulate the liver. They are also invaluable for native bowels and for all bilious disorders. The Ointment is a priceless remedy for piles, sprains, ulcers, and all manner of sores.

HYDERABAD LETTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

HYDERABAD, JAN. 12.

The new year has opened at Hyderabad with two of the brilliant entertainments by Hyderabad nobles for which the place is so justly celebrated. On the 4th instant, Sir Khoorshed Jah entertained Mr., Mrs. and the Misses Plowden in the Ilugumpalli Gardens. These gardens, situated almost half-way between Secunderabad and the city, are well suited to the very picturesque style of illumination so popular here, and presented quite a fairylike scene. Thousands of coloured lights were placed along the paths and outlined the building, while among the tall and graceful palm trees, which form such a feature in the gardens, numbers of Chinese lanterns were hung. The house itself is small and tawdrily furnished, but ample room for the three hundred guests assembled was found in large shamianas, tastefully decorated for the occasion. A brilliant display of fireworks and the usual nautch were provided for the after-dinner amusement of the guests, who took their departure soon after 11 p.m.

Last night, his Excellency Sir Asman Jah gave a State banquet at the Basheer Bagh Palace to the Resident, Mr. Plowden, and his daughters, all the senior officers in the garrison and the chief officials, both European and Native, in his Highness the Nizam's service were present. Carers were laid in the fine theatre, attached to the palace, for 170 guests, and about 150 were present. The arrangements were perfect, and the dinner was all that the most fastidious could desire. The grounds were beautifully illuminated, but the nautch and fireworks of the week before were not repeated, to the great relief of most of those present. His Excellency has issued invitations for a fancy dress ball on the 22nd, and at the present moment the all-absorbing topic of conversation among both sexes in the station is "What shall I wear," and "How am I to get it." Considering only ten days remain in which to get up a costume, and a large number of those invited are still undecided as to the style of dress best suited to show off their charms, the powers of the local tailors and dressmakers are likely to be severely taxed at the last moment. A "calico ball" at the United Service Club was in contemplation on the 20th, but it has been put off till February, when it will probably be a repetition of the Basheer Bagh fancy ball.

Mrs. East has given two delightful musical "At Homes" lately, one in Christmas week, and the other on Twelfth Night. On both occasions her rooms were crowded with a most appreciative audience, the music provided being extremely good. We have got among us some very talented instrumentalists and vocalists just now, and it is hoped that the complete success of Mrs. East's musical parties may encourage others who have large rooms to follow her example.

The Assault-at-Arms on the 30th and 31st of December was quite equal to that held last year. Both afternoons the Maidan was crowded with spectators, and the keenest interest was evinced in the different events. As is usual, the tugs-of war were looked on as the most exciting events in the programme. The Inniskillings won the final from the Artillery after a hard struggle. Our Proclamation Day Parade here seemed rather a tame affair this year, as the troops only marched past. The 21st Hussars made their first appearance in public since their arrival in the station, and looked a splendid body of men. The Bedfordshire was only a skeleton regiment. Those left of them leave Secunderabad this week.

The Golcondah Brigade sports were held on the Futteh Maidan on the 5th inst., there was a large gathering of spectators. Several gaily-decorated tents shaded the visitors from the rays of the afternoon sun, and in one of them the officers of the Golcondah Brigade had provided refreshments in abundance. The events were open to his Highness the Nizam's Regular Troops, the Golcondah Brigade, the Secunderabad Force, the Hyderabad Contingent, the Palgah Troops, and the members of the U. S. Club, the Hyderabad Club, and other recognized clubs and gymkhanas. There were nine events on the programme, but owing to darkness setting in, the last three, an elephant, a camel, and palanquin races did not come off. There were sixty-one entries for the first event, tent-pegging. The pigs to be placed sideways. The prize, a challenge cup, presented by the Nizam, value Rs. 200, to become the property of the winner at two successive meetings, was won by Mr. Abraham, of his Highness' Regular Troops. The second event, tent-pegging with swords, was also won by one of the Regular Troops. For this there were fifty-two entries, and as both the competition was keen, the best native riders in the station taking part in it, Colonel Nevill had good reason to be proud of the successes scored by his men. For the tent-pegging with swords the prize was also a challenge cup. It was presented by H. E. Sir Asman Jah, and is valued at Rs. 175. The tent-pegging for boys under 14 years of age was a new feature in the sports here. Seven boys entered to compete for the prize, a silver mounted tent-pegging spear, presented by Major Afsur Jung. This was won by one of the sons of Captain Dickson. Four teams entered for the wrestling on ponies. The winners were the team from Sir Asman Jah's Palgah Troops. The sheep-cutting prize, a challenge cup, presented by Nawab Vicar-al-Oomra, was won by one of the men of the Hyderabad Contingent. There were twenty entries for the event. Squads of M. N. I., the Golcondah Brigade, 15th Regiments Sarf-i-Khas Regiment entered for the physical drill with arms. The prize, Rs. 20, was won by the 15th M. N. I. Nine teams entered for the tug-of-war, which was won by H. E. Sir Asman Jah's Palgah Troops on Thursday, the 7th instant, the annual tent-pegging tournament took place on the Futteh maidan, when the handsome challenge cup, presented five years ago by H. H. the Nizam, was won by the 4th Lancers Hyderabad Contingent. They are now the owners of the cup, this being the second year in succession that it has been won by them. They are also the holders at present of the tent-pegging challenge cup, presented by Colonel Nevill, which is to be competed for next month, and unless some more formidable rival than any of the teams that came against them on Thursday can be found, they will in all probability be also the winners of it. Their form was excellent, and though there were twenty-eight entries they so far distanced all competitors that there were no ties to be ridden off, and the tent-pegging was over soon after 4 p.m. A circus had been got up on the maidan, and when the tent-pegging was over, some of the men and horses of the Golcondah Brigade went through some pretty performances. Mr. Plowden then presented the challenge cup to the winning team, who were loudly cheered as they received it.

Mrs. Plowden gave her first garden-party at the Chudderghaut Residency on Saturday. There was a large gathering, and tennis and badminton were kept up with great spirit till dark. Invitations have been issued for an "at home" at the Residency on Friday night. Society is unanimous in its wish that Mr. Plowden's acting appointment may be confirmed, as under Mr. Plowden's reign there seems to be every likelihood of the good old days at the Residency being revived.

Sir Asman Jah and a small staff leave for Ajmere at the end of this month for a short visit. It is rumoured that a compromise will be effected in the case pending between Abdul Haq and the Nizam's Government. A rumour is also rife as to a likelihood of a compromise of the civil suit against Mr. Jacob for the recovery of the twenty-three lakhs of rupees. It has been remarked here that the Indian papers have been strangely silent on the subject of the criminal prosecution against Mr. Jacob, lately sentenced to a close in Calcutta. It was expected that once the case was concluded, all the leading papers would have had something to say on the subject, but, except by yourself and another, no remarks have been made.

We have had fewer globe-trotters than usual this cold weather. It is a pity that strangers coming to visit Hyderabad should not do so in November, December, and January, when our climate is probably one of the best in the world, instead of waiting, as they too often do, until they are about to leave India in March. This year we are having an unusually cold weather, but owing to the great scarcity of water it will probably be a short one. In a few districts in the Nizam's dominions, there is a certain amount of distress owing to the shortness of the rainfall, but nowhere does it amount to famine, and steps have been taken by Government, under the advice of Mr. Palmer, Chief Engineer, to start relief works wherever necessary. A movement has been set on foot to organize a friendly-minded society in Chudderghaut. There has been one for some years in Secunderabad, but though admirably worked, the distance between the two places is too great to make it of much practical utility to the poor of Chudderghaut, and the want of a local society has been often felt. The Nizam's Government having most generously given a grant of Rs. 40 a month. Efforts are now being made with considerable success to obtain sufficient funds to allow the society to commence operations at once.

In connection with the altered conditions on the North-West frontier, due to the extension of British influence over various tribes, the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab has submitted proposals to the Government of India for recasting the border militia. The question, observes a contemporary is one which might be taken up at the same time as the redistribution of the frontier force. This will probably be after the arrival of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in Calcutta.

The total number of deaths registered in Bombay during the week ending January 12 was 512, giving a death-rate of 30·92 per annum per thousand as against 29·79 the corresponding period of last year, and 27·10 the average over the past five years. COCK-FIGHTING IN CHOTA NAGPUR.

The ancient English pastime of cock-fighting is a recreation which is in vogue nearly all over Chota Nagpur. Kols, Bhumijs, Oraons, and other races, young and old, delight in it. On fixed days and at fixed places they meet for the purpose of seeing their birds fight. Recently, I witnessed one of these cock-fights. Under a large tamarind tree were assembled over a hundred people of all ages, with about forty birds on the field ready for the fight. Preparatory to the commencement of the fight the owners of the different birds carefully inspected the birds of other competitors, and challenges were made and accepted. After this the birds were taken to the spur-men, of whom two were present.

These spur-men play a very important part in connection with the fight. They supply the steel spurs with which the birds are armed, and which they tie to the legs of the birds in consideration of getting a leg of the vanquished bird. The two men present had each a selection of about thirty steel spurs. These spurs are about three inches in length, like the blade of a pen-knife with a slight curve to them. A small steel haft is fixed transversely to the blade, and these are bound with fine twine by the semi-moon on the right legs of the birds. While this operation is going on, the spur-men repeat certain have been engaged on. The spurs appear to me, men, to alone know how to fix them on the birds as particular care has to be taken to have them tied at a certain angle and a certain height.

As soon as a couple of birds have been matched and have had spurs tied on, a ring is formed by the sight-seers and competitors, and the fight begins. The keenest interest is shown by all concerned; but as a rule the fight does not last long, as the deadly spurs soon do their work, and many a fine bird is killed at the very onset, or turns from its adversary on receiving a cruel wound. A lucky kick or a chance thrust of the spur turns the scales often in favour of the smaller or weaker bird; but it is wonderful to see the persistency with which a fairly matched pair will fight in spite of the terrible wounds they receive. As soon as a bird turns from its adversary the fight is considered over, and the owner of the victorious bird claims the other, which is killed on the spot, the spur-man getting a leg for his share. Birds intended for fighting are kept apart from others for two and three months, and are taken great care of and properly fed. They are brought to the field covered up, their superstitious owners considering it an ill-omen for any one to set eyes on them till they are actually on the field. To the races I have already named, cock-fighting is of ever-recurring interest, and old and young take an equal delight in this recreation, in which, however, women do not participate.—Englishman.

News reaches us from Italy of a double tragedy near Ponto di Piave, in the Venetian Province. A Signor Moretto, twenty-two years of age, went out with his young wife. He carried a loaded pistol, and the lady begged him to give it to her, as she wished to try to shoot a bird. But the cap was damp and failed to explode. The husband took the pistol to examine it, and just as he did so, the cap exploded, and the poor wife, who was leaning over watching what her husband was doing, was hit in the face. She was immediately taken home, but she expired in a very short time. Almost at the same hour, at Camposampiero, a Signor Bettini, aged twenty-six years went out to shoot, accompanied also by his wife. They were still on their honeymoon. Signor Bettini fired at a bird, which fell wounded to the ground. In picking it up Signor Bettini struck the end of his double-barrelled gun against a stone, and the accompanying shot went of the bullet hitting him full in the breast. In a few minutes he was dead, his poor wife standing beside him almost mad with horror and grief.

A thief, who has for a long time in all probability been stealing incandescent electric lamps at the Paris theatres, has just been arrested by a clever device of the management of the Porte St. Martin. As it was found that a great many lamps had disappeared at that house, the electrical engineer so arranged the fittings that immediately a lamp was removed the electric current sounded an alarm. The man was thus caught as he was making away with a lamp in his pocket, and as he refuses his name and address to the police, it is believed that he has a large store somewhere of the stolen articles.

A document found among the Duke of Rutland's papers at Belvoir Castle throws a curious light upon the mode of getting private Bills through the House of Commons in the days of King Charles II. The case in hand was the Divorce Bill of John, Lord de Roos, an affair that caused a great deal of gossip in its day. One of his lordship's agents wrote in January, 1667, "On Wednesday last I got six-and-forty of the House of Commons to The Dog Tavern, in the Palace-yard at Westminster, when were present Mr. Attorney General and Mr. George Montagu. As soon as they had dined we carried them all to the House of Commons and they passed the Bill, as the Committee, without any amendments, and ordered it to be reported the next day."

Advice to Mothers.—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP, is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

PURE PERSONALITIES.

Few men will be missed by a larger circle of private and professional friends than the late Sir Risdon Bennett. He enjoyed the confidence of the medical faculty in London in a possibly unequalled degree; physicians, both "popular and fashionable," resorted to him in their difficulties, and never went empty away from that clear head and kindly heart. He was a man of strongly-accentuated religious views, but his non-conformity was of the old-fashioned non-political sort, and he had a grave smile for many of the advanced fads of the day. His handsome presence and undoubted earnestness, added to his high character and standing, made his a welcome figure at all sorts of non-professional gatherings, as well as at "the College," over which he presided with great ability for six years. About a month ago his health began to fail; as he expressed it to an old friend, "all my powers are leaving me." The declension was, indeed, rapid, and he died at midnight on Monday. His eldest surviving son, Dr. Selfe Bennett, is in practice in Upper Berkeley Street; he lost his eldest son, R. D. Bennett, a rising barrister, some years ago. He was a fine example—almost the last surviving—of the physicians of the old school.

Professor Ernest Curtius, on the 22nd of last month, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the day on which he took his doctor's degree. A Berlin correspondent writes: The fiftieth anniversary of science received congratulations from all quarters, including those of the scientific corporations of Berlin and the Minister of Worship and Public Instruction. Count von Zedlitz, on behalf of the Emperor, conveyed to him a letter from his Majesty, in which, after expressing his warmest congratulations he says:—"Science especially owes it to your manifold activity, full of merit, that archæology has attained its present flourishing state. But above all I remember to-day the great services you rendered my father resting in God, who not only esteemed in you the teacher of many years' standing but also his faithful friend and adviser. I, therefore, act in the sense of the august departed when I bestow upon you as a proof of my recognition and gratitude the Star of the [illegible] Professor Ernest Curtius was born at Lubeck on the 2nd September, 1814. He studied at Bonn, Gottingen, and Berlin. In 1836 the young Archæologist went to Athens, and wandered thence through the Peloponnesus, first with the renowned geographer, Karl Ritter, and with Alfried Miller, who died there, and then with his most intimate friend, the poet Emanuel Geibel.

On his return to Germany, in 1814, Curtius took his degree, his thesis being a topographical work on Athens, which was to solve an old point of controversy. In 1844 he was appointed Professor in Berlin. He might long have remained in the back-ground if a lucky coincidence had not drawn public attention to him. He gave a lecture upon the Acropolis of Athens, and with so much ability that the princess, who afterwards became the Empress Augusta, being among the audience, appointed Curtius tutor to her only son. The young prince became most warmly attached to his tutor, and in the stormy year of 1848, while his father
